Music

Madrona students are lucky in that they start instruments in the 4th grade.

MIT allocates money every year for the music teachers to hire professional musicians who offer
guided help to students in class.

madrona kids' fund

Xylophones and guitars have been added to the general music collection.

Ms. Valencia is also able to buy replacement parts for instruments that start to show wear.

Sheet music for choir has been provided by MIT.

Stools for students to sit on while playing or singing have also been purchased.

STEAM Night

Science, Technology, Engineering, Art, Math

In the spring, Madrona opens its doors one evening to bring STEAM to our families. The Burke Museum, Pacific Science Center, Museum of Flight and Mad Science are just a few of the headliners we've had in the past.

This event is completely free to families, thanks to generous donations to MIT.

Assemblies

MIT funds have helped bring assemblies to Madrona students.

Children saw a Native American Dancer.

The film “Screenagers” was shown to Middle School students.

Actors from local theaters have been brought in to put on plays.

Moral Boosters

Because of generous giving, MIT has had funds to help boost the moral of the tireless staff at Madrona. From goody bags, to a candy bar to grab-a-snack during conference week, staff members have felt the love.

Last year, we provided some much needed rain ponchos for the fabulous playground aids and parking lot staff!

AND voted to support the purchase of compliant walkie talkies too!

MIT Business Expenses.

As with most non-profits, there are some business expenses associated with running Madrona Integrated Team.

MIT uses MoneyMinder to balance the bank books.

We use a paid site for our Madrona BearFacts website and to send out email.

We also have a professional review our finances once a year to make sure everything is up to standard.
